AUTO ACCIDENTS PILE UP.

Fourth One in Four Days Occurrs on St. Johnsbury-Lyndonville Road.

St. Johnsbury, July 25 .- Mrs. V. L. Morancy and baby of Lyndonville were thrown from an automobile Wednesday when the Chevrolet driven by Mr. Morancy struck the Ford driven by Lyle Parker of St. Johnsbury. The cars came to gether near the Boston and Maine crossinga few miles north of St. Johnsbury Mrs. Morancy's leg was hurt and she and her baby were badly shaken up and bruised. The Parker car was practically demolished. Mr. Morancy with his family was going home and Mr. Parker was returning to St. Johnsbury,

A Vermont car owned in Lyndonville and a Massachusetts car came to grief Wednesday on the St. Johnsbury-Lyndonville road. The Vermont car turned out to pass a road team and the Massachusetts car, going in the opposite direction, attempted to pass between them striking both the team and the other ear and doing considerable damage to

A HORSE LOVES A TREE, WHY DON'T YOU?

The horses of the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker all like trees. Just as you prefer that part of the steak next to the bone so the horse likes that tender part of the tree right under the bark. Don't blame the horse, he's almost human, blame yourself, says today's builetin from the American Forestry association at Washington, D. C. Get a tree guard and protect the tree. This newspaper is co-operating with the association for more tree planting and in educating in the proper care of trees. Detailed information on all these points will be sent free to readers of this paper who write to the American Forestry associa-tion for data on trees. The asso-ciation will tell you in detail what to do for trees that you have neglected. Look around you and see what you can do for trees. They are your best friends and we should have more of them in this city. Memorial trees were planted spring and thousands more will be planted in the fall. Study trees and be ready to do your part in making the city more beautiful.
